

In this exhibition, we are trying out the following accessibility supports:

- Yellow carpets are placed to help guide you to the exhibition panels.
- By scanning the QR codes on the panels with your smartphone, you can listen to the explanations as audio.
- Large-print versions of the panel texts are available for you to read in hand.
- Braille versions of the exhibition descriptions are available.
- Ear defenders and earplugs are available if you are sensitive to loud sounds.
- Sunglasses are available if you are sensitive to bright light.
- Fidget toys are provided for when you would like to cool down.
- For one of video works, you can listen to an audio description through headphones.

If you notice anything or have any difficulties, please feel free to speak to a museum staff member.
